研究計画 Research Plan	The study of folk literature is an important discipline as it involves many areas of interests, including language use and the cultural expressions of a group of people. This particular paper will be an in-depth analysis of selected printed texts, in this case the collected folk tales of the Isinai group of northern Philippines, and will definitely yield insights about their world-view through the identification of value-laden stories and literary devices that point to the richness of this people's experience. This is actually a look into the Isinai oral and literary practices and thus will hopefully contribute to the importance of understanding a language and a people that is fast being assimilated into the modernizing tendencies of the Philippine national imaginary.
